Description

In the summer of 2016, I volunteered as a research assistant to Ashlyn Schwartz under the supervision of Dr. Dawn Coe as she conducted her master's thesis with the department of Kinesiology, Recreation, and Sports Studies. The research study was titled the "GAP Study" and focused it's data collection among 3-5 year olds and their metabolic costs in the garden and playground. The study was conducted at the Early Learning Center outside on the playground and in their garden. There were several components to the data collection including: video recordings of physical and verbal behavior, accelerometers, and an Oxygen mobile device. As an assistant, I helped set up the measurement devices, record video data, and facilitate structured play in the garden four days a week.
